JUMPERS TRIED AT THE WOODBINE

Dr. Stewart the Best of the Novices and Eli Kindig of the Older Ones.

HORSES FROM DETROIT

Fair Annet Throws Her Jockey and Runs Away Down Queen St. East.

The steeplechase field at Woodbine was opened to the jumpers to-day for the first time this spring, and nearly all the jumpers in training hereabouts were sent over the course. The field is in excellent condition, and almost perfect for steeplechasing. The brush jump at the extreme west end of the field was of a dead color, and some of the less experienced horses had to be coaxed to go over it. Green brush will be placed there on Thursday, when the jumpers will take their second run through the field.

The following "leppers" were schooled: Jack Carey, V. R. Customs, Happy Hermit, Mystic Shriner, Bonaparte, Eli Kindig, Tate's Creek, Quicksilver, Toddy Ladle, Daryl, California, Basie, Mario, Belle of Elkton, Wexford, Aragnol, Jim Lisle, Master Fred, Lastfellow, Bromo, The Professor, Bridal Tour, and Dr. Stewart. Of the novices the palm was easily carried off by Joe Duggan's Dr. Stewart, who jumped in regular Lion Heart fashion. Bonaparte and Bromo also performed well. Old Eli Kindig, Charlie Phair's Aragnol, and W. F. Maclean's Daryl divided the honors in the experienced division. Mystic Shriner, the best hunt horse at the track, went twice around without a mistake. There were very few bad spots out, and all indications point to some great steeplechases here at the coming meeting.

While the track was in excellent condition there was a cold, raw wind, and none of the flat horses was let down. Great interest was manifested in the initial track appearance of the Barrie Queen's Platers. Kaslo, belonging to A. D. Simon, is as fine-looking a colt as is at the track. The rail birds were tickled with his condition. The Barrie pair—Bellcourt and Lady Berkeley—gave their admirers full satisfaction. They galloped a couple of miles and appeared ready to stand some hard work in the final preparation.

Detroit Arrivals To-day.

Two Detroit stables arrived to-day. F. J. Kittleman's quintette consists as follows:

Comorant, b.h., 5, by Phoenix—Glen Hop.

Matches, b.f., 2, by Lamplighter—Maje.

Private David, blg., 3, by Longdock—Sweet Genevieve.

Hunting, b.m., 3, by Hanover—Mamie Hunt.

Ursula Gurnett, b.f., 2, —— Aunt Bess.

Fox and McDonell brought four with them, whose names are appended:

Telmarch, ch.h., 4, by Order—Tolache.

Manillan, ch.g., 4, by Spendthrift—Philippa.

The Oriole, ch.m., 4, by Potomac—Thrill.

Spaldy Y.

Fair Annets' Runaway.

Considerable excitement was caused at 10.30 by a runaway, in which one of the Wadsworth 2-year-olds, a Hanover filly called Fair Annet, figured as the star performer. She was galloping down the home stretch and when opposite the grand stand threw her rider. In falling the boy pulled the bridle off of her. She wheeled around and ran two miles the wrong way of the track. Finally, she was let out the gate and ran through the stable yard back of the Hendrie stable, where she was cornered. Before she could be secured she was off again, and, retracing her steps, dashed out of the Eastern avenue gate, and started for Montreal, where there is to be a race meet in July. At Lee avenue she concluded that Woodbine was good enough for her, and allowed herself to be caught and led docilely back to the stable, apparently none the worse for her escapade.

Notes of the Horsemen.

Word has been received from Fort Erie that Arthur Willis would bring five horses here, including Race Bud, Tyrba, and Miss Shanley. The last-named is expected to win first time out.

The horses that have been stabled at Slattery's moved down to Woodbine yesterday.

Jockey Slocum will ride with the Kittleman stable. He accompanied the horses.

Lorne Thompson, one of the best riders Canada has produced, is with the Dyment stable.

The advance guard of the Hendrie string was at work to-day getting the stable ready for the horses, who will come down from Hamilton to-morrow.

There were some fast Sunday trials. Orontas ran a mile easily in 1.50 1-2; Benckart six furlongs in 1.22 1-2; Paardeburg a mile in 1.56; Devil's Own three-quarters in 1.24 1-2; War Sprite six furlongs in 1.23 1-4; Infelice a half in .56; Livonian one and one-quarter miles in 2.27.

FIRST BLOOD FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Board is making this as difficult as possible by insisting upon its last pound of flesh."

"The School Board may have the right to the money for these salary increases," commented Ald. Graham, "but we have the right to protest to the last against such extravagance, and this, I think, we should do. If we don't we place ourselves in the position, before the ratepayers, of having sanctioned such an expenditure by our silence."

"The trustees may have power to increase salaries during the year, but they have no right to make those increases retroactive," was Ald. Crane's conclusion. "We'll save one-third of the $30,000 of teachers' increases by establishing that point."

"We might as well settle first as last," said Ald. Hodgson.

Ald. Starr will probably move at the City Council this afternoon that the money necessary to meet the increases be voted. Corporation Counsel Fullerton, it seems, had not the School Board's agreement with its teachers, wherein the right to regulate salaries was reserved to the incoming trustees, before him when he gave the civic controllers the opinion that the increases were illegal.

At Law With Mother-in-Law.

Charles E. Edmonds of St. Thomas is appealing against a judgment which made his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Ann Haynes, entitled to $1,000 insurance which was upon the life of her daughter. Mrs. Hayne produces a will turning over the money to her.

HOW TORONTO IS FORGING AHEAD

Interesting Figures From Mr. Fleming's Report on His Department in Answer to the Request of Ald. Sheard.

Assessment Commissioner Fleming's answers to the enquiries made by Ald. Sheard regarding his department reached the City Council this afternoon. The Commissioner's report bristles with facts and figures that will afford the inquisitive aldermen food for reflection for some time to come.

When Mr. Fleming succeeded Mr. Maughan in 1897 the salary attached to the position was increased from $2,250 to $4,000, and the duties of renting the city's properties, encouraging the establishment of manufacturing industries here, advising in arbitrations and in litigation against the city involving property valuations, and buying in lands for sale for taxes were added.

The assessors and clerks were reduced in number from fourten to six in each case, the former's pay being increased from $1.70 to $5, and the latter's from $1.66 to $2 per day.

An expert assessment of street railway, gas, electric light, telephone, and telegraph plants cost the city $2,520 in 1898, and effected an increased assessment of $800,000, representing $12,000 in taxes, but the "scrap iron" judgment unfortunately intervened. Three expert valuations of new buildings the same year, however, have since realized the city $10,000 in taxes at a trifling original outlay of $275.

Money Well Spent.

It costs about $1,000 a year for statements of property transfers from the Registry office, but the result is that the city's assessment rolls, which are open to the public without fee for the information they impart, are practically as accurate a record of the ownership of property throughout the city as the books of the Registry office itself, and the city's assessment is correspondingly free from error. The voters' list is in the same way kept up to date.

There were 11,529 assessments appealed against in 1895, as compared with 3,164 in 1901.

In 1894 there were 4,633 vacant houses, stores, and other buildings in the city in 1900 only 761.

The assessment for 1901 shows an increase of $3,218,135, of which $1,535,290 is in personal property and income.

The operation of the Ontario Revenue Act restricted the assessment on the incomes of loan, insurance, and trust companies to such an extent that it decreased the city's assessment by $1,380,000 in 1900. The "scrap iron" Act added $1,820,000 to this loss.

In seven years the assessed value of land in the city decreased $23,000,000, until this year, when there is an increase of $131,557, with $1,419,731 more for buildings and improvements.

City's assessment for 1901: Real property, $114,836,084; personal property and income, $14,118,060; total, $128,954,144.

In 1894 the City Engineer recommended 38 local improvement works; in 1900, 598.

Forty-three parcels of property bought in by the city at tax sales have since been sold for $2,962 more than the taxes against them.

City's New Industries.

Manufacturers who have located in Toronto since 1897 are: Canadian Oil-ed Clothing Company, invested $14,000 in factory, employs nearly 100 hands. Wilson, Lytle Badgerow Company, $20,-000 in buildings, 40 hands, $600,000 capital; Heinz Pickle Company, Lever Brothers, $200,000 in buildings; J. D. King Company, $23,000; Foster Brothers, manufacturers of iron bedsteads; Diamond Glass Company, 300 hands; Compensating Organ Company, 25 hands, Turnbull and Russell, elevator works, $12,000, employing 40 men; W. H. Perrin and Company, mining machinery, 30 men; Yesbra Manufacturing Company, furniture; McCarthy and Cronk, shoes, 50 hands; Testa Feather and Artificial Flower Company, 10 hands; Victoria Shoe Company, 45 hands.

Eleven other manufacturing firms were induced to remain in Toronto after they had been offered liberal inducements to locate elsewhere.

The Assessment Department cost $22,487 to maintain in 1897, including $6,462 for officials' salaries, $4,860 for the assessors, $5,522 for temporary clerks, $3,225 for the survey branch, and $2,416 for office expenses. The cost in 1900 was $26,426, made up of $8,308 for official salaries, $5,040 for assessors, $7,657 for clerks, $3,008 for surveyors and $2,412 for office expenses. Increased local improvement work accounts for the increase in the cost of clerical work.

A Steady Increase.

The factories and warehouses erected and extended in Toronto in the past four years are: 1897—24 factories, $113,-200; 16 warehouses, $71,700 ;total, $189,-900; 1898—37 factories, $339,550; 23 warehouses, $211,300; total, $550,850; 1899—45 factories, $621,100; 27 warehouses, $124,055; total, $745,155; 1900—31 factories, $408,900; 27 warehouses, $227,-325; total, $696,225.

TO SILENCE THE BAND ON SUNDAY

Clergymen May Appeal to the Minister of Militia to Interfere.

APPEAL OF PORT COLBORNE

Grocers and Butchers There Are Accused of Doing Business On the Lord's Day.

Rev. Dr. Caven read a paper on "Sabbath Observance" at the Presbyterian Association this morning. The question of the Pan-American being opened on Sunday came up for discussion.

The question of the Sunday concerts at the Island also came up. It was remarked that at the concert given yesterday at the Island the music was purely secular. A committee consisting of Rev. Messrs. Turnbull, Geggie, Shearer, and Murray was appointed to find out whether the band was there with the permission and approval of the military authorities. The bandsmen wear the King's uniform, and if the authorities in Toronto are sanctioning this breach of Sabbath observance, a protest will be entered before the Minister of Militia.

Sunday Elsewhere.

At the Methodist Association this morning a committee consisting of Revs. Dr. Chown, J. F. Ockley, and Dr. Blackstock was appointed to draft a resolution of sympathy with Mrs. John Hunt.

Rev. J. G. Shearer addressed the meeting on behalf of the Lord's Day Alliance and Sunday observance in Ontario. Mr. Shearer called attention to some of the outstanding encroachments on the Sabbath. Referring to British Columbia, he spoke of mining, athletic sports, and sportsmen's excursions being carried on on Sunday. The saloons are kept open in that Province on Sundays. In Quebec the Alliance has to contend with the open theater and Sunday sports. Recently, at Southampton, an excursion was conducted on Sunday in connection with a military funeral. Port Colborne writes asking the Alliance to help them put down eight grievances, namely, the Sunday excursions from Buffalo, open ice cream rooms, open soda water fountains, open butcher shops, open grocery stores, open repair shops, open lime kilns, and Sunday papers.

On the other hand, Mr. Shearer mentioned the encouragements he is meeting in his work. These are the attitude of the press, the attitude of standing laymen, the attitude of organized labor, the success attending the efforts of people in Montreal, and the success that followed the appeals to the Legislative Assembly this session.

"Toronto," said Mr. Shearer, "has a greater influence in determining what shall be the Sabbath of Ontario than any other city. Her responsibilities in this respect are very great, and it will be nothing to her credit if she does not recognize them.

Farewell to Dr. Eaton.

There was a large attendance at the Baptist Ministerial Association to-day, this being the last meeting of the season. Rev. E. Phillips of Eglinton read the paper of the day on "Pentecostal Power: Is it for us?" holding that the same power that was with the apostles is with the people of to-day, and is just as strongly manifested.

The members of the association bade farewell to Rev. Chas. A. Eaton, who goes to Cleveland shortly to take the pastorate of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church in that city. In reply to the address, Mr. Eaton expressed extreme regret at parting from his Toronto brethren. Rev. Dr. Thomas, speaking on behalf of the association, said that this regret was reciprocal, and hoped that time would bring Mr. Eaton back to Toronto. A committee consisting of Revs. Dr. Thomas, P. C. Parker, and T. Scott will draft a suitable resolution of appreciation.

INJURED ONES WILL RECOVER.

Miss Ward, Injured By a Cyclist, Relieved of Danger By an Operation.

Miss Susan Ward, the woman who was knocked down in Yonge street at the corner of Wilton avenue on Friday night, took a turn for the worse on Saturday, and her life was despaired of. A blood vessel in her head was ruptured. Yesterday an operation to relieve the clot on the brain was performed, and the woman is now doing well and will likely recover.

Edward Clarke, the man who was found on the railway track near Oakville yesterday, and was brought to the Emergency Hospital, is much better to-day, and the chances are that he will recover, in spite of his terrible injuries.

HOW TORONTO SPENT SUNDAY

little seas broke over the low shells, but the men in the sliding seats were happy. In some of the slips yachtsmen toiled mightily. Masts were stepped, decked scraped, gear overhauled, and the process of fitting out went on merrily. The man at work envied the man at play, and the sun beamed on all.

Sunburn? It's safe betting there is an acre of it scattered through the city to-day, for Old Sol strove mightily and his rays were hot. In the neighborhood of a thousand men spent the day on the water in sailing craft or vessels propelled by oars. The day proved the popularity of that dandy little craft, the sailing dingy There were a couple of score of them darting hither and thither during the afternoon In the puffy wind they proved themselves very stiff little craft, and they traveled at a smart pace in anything from a zephyr up.

Up around the National Yacht and Skiff Club things were very lively. Feather and Holden's new boat, the Mistress Nell; William Young's new one, Typhoon; the Parkdale Sailing Club's crack skiff, a recent acquisition to the fleet, Romp, and a couple of other dingies, Dream, Pickle, National, and Zanetta, the deep draughts Chance and Pirate, were out. There were many impromptu races just outside the western gap. Some of the boats got all the wind they wanted, and showed centerboards and keels when the stiff puffs came on.

At the Queen City Yacht Club things were slow. Falcon, Arab, Ibis, and some of the smaller fry were bobbing about, but the remainder of the fleet are not yet in commission. A couple of dingles were the Royal Canadian Yacht Club's contribution to the fleet on the bay.

On the Beaches.

Down at Kew and Balmy Beaches the cottagers came out in summer attire yesterday, and spent the day in lounging on the balconies or in strolling along the sands. There were but few shutters up at these suburban resorts, the majority of the cottages being already occupied for the season. Awnings are stretched and hammocks are swung, and the summer resident enjoyed the comfort of both yesterday.

Children played along the beach, still strewn with the winter's seaweed, and scooped the first holes of the season in the sand. Others ran footraces in their bare feet, a treat the biggest of boys enjoy at times. They renewed their acquaintance with what is left of the battered old hull of the W. T. Robb at Victoria Park, where the peacocks strutted about in full regalia, and even the stuffed seal showed signs of life.

The rush at Munro Park began early in the afternoon. The street railway service was not equal to the occasion, and standing room was scarce even on the footboards of the trailers. A long dusty line of bicyclists completed the procession.

The crowd headed instinctively for the railed embankment that overlooks the lake at the park. There was nothing to see but the peaceful, placid water glistening in the warm spring sun, and dotted here and there with sail and row boats, but that was enough. The Torontonian takes to water as naturally as a duck.

Crowds in High Park.

Fully ten thousand people visited High Park yesterday, and roaming down along the shore of Humber bay were thousands more. The street car service on the north side of the park was very poor, consisting of two stub cars, with a ten-minute service. There was much crowding and cussing, and many ladies were left behind and walked. On the bay side the service was none too good, and the cars arrived every six minutes, leaving much crowding and dissatisfaction among those who were bound homewards. In the park the wind whirled the dust in clouds, and sprinkled the army of wheelmen, those who drove, and spectators unmercilessly.

But for all that the visiting thousands seemed to enjoy themselves, and the refreshment booths did a tremendous business. There was grandpa with his grandson, hand-in-hand, husband and wife, along the pathway, lovers and sweethearts just a little from th beaten walk, hundreds of bicycles, many fast horses, horseless carriages, and parties of horsemen. And out in the bay, far from the dust and the crowds, were many little sails, many row boats, and a few canoes. They seemed to have all the best of it out there, too.

The new drive just opened up in the eastern part of the park was well-patronized, and relieved the congested spots in front and along by the refreshment stands. Howard Lake, the herd of elks, and the other points of interest, all had hundreds of admirers, and it was late in the evening before the last of the holidayers turned their faces towards the city.

SUICIDED IN PRISON.

Practically a Confession By Archie McLeod That He Murdered His Mother.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., May 6.—Archie McLeod, a farmer charged with the murder of his mother to secure her share of the farm at Rose Valley, suicided in jail here Sunday by hanging himself with a towel. He was to have been examined this morning. He leaves a wife and three children. This is taken as a confession of guilt of the most awful crime ever committed on the Island.

THE SHAMROCK'S TRIALS.

Present Cup Challenger Proves Its Superiority in Certain Respects To-day.

Southampton, May 6.—The Shamrocks had a second spin this morning, and the result supports the view that the cup challenger is vastly superior to the old boat when going close-hauled, but that the older boat can travel equally fast when going off and before the wind.

A lecture will be given in St. George's schoolhouse on Thursday evening, May 9th, by Professor Clark on behalf of the Italian missioner, Rev. D. A. Rocca. Professor Clark's subject is "The Ancient Mariner."

DOUBT THE BAR AND THE PRESS

Witnesses Suspicious in Police Court —Acquittals and Convictions.

"I don't know how it is, but nearly always people who come here for the first time as witnesses when asked to identify a prisoner always look first at the lawyers and then at the reporters," remarked Crown Attorney Curry in the Police Court to-day. "They pass over the prisoner in the most conspicuous place and look at the gentlemen of the press and the bar. Maybe they are the most likely looking."

In a charge of pocket picking against William Jones, alias Thomas Johnston, an old man, three women, called as witnesses, each in turn narrowly scanned the lawyers and then the aggregation in the press box before they condescended to look at the man in the dock. They all identified the prisoner, however.

Jones was caught by Mrs. Jeffery of Mayville, at St. Lawrence market last Saturday with his hand in her pocket. Mrs. Willis of Streetsville and her daughter both identified the prisoner as the man who had tried to rob Mrs. Jeffery, and he was convicted.

On December 22nd, 1896, he was convicted of picking pockets and was sentenced to six months.

"I'll give you a year and see if that won't teach you to let pockets alone," said his Worship to-day.

Employment Agents Acquitted.

The charge of conspiracy against J. C. Allen, J. H. Sweet, and William Murray, employment agents, with offices in Yonge Street Arcade, was dismissed. "There is no evidence of conspiracy against these three men, but I think Sweet is guilty of a breach of the by-law in demanding $5 from T. W. Riddell, and I think a charge should be laid against him," remarked His Worship at the conclusion of the case.

Westlake Acquitted.

The charge of stealing a bicycle owned by H. A. Lawrence against William Westlake was dismissed, Lou Bounsall said that he had lent Westlake, who was his brother-in-law, the wheel to ride in place of his own. The machine had been left in his place to be repaired by a man who had not returned to claim it.

Met His Finish.

Adelber Berthiaume, a Montreal lad, thought he had struck a snap when he undertook to "graft" Toronto. He cleaned up $9 from the trunk of Oliver Bellehammer, a man who roomed next to him in King street east. Then he picked out the best-looking wheel along the kerb in King street and rode off. He bumped into Detective Forest and his game was "off." To-day His Worship sent him to jail for 60 days and ordered that a ticket to Montreal which he had purchased with Bellehammer's money be turned over to the victim.

In a raid on a house at 98 Pearl street Saturday night the police captured John and Johanna Daly, the keepers, and William Douglas, Joseph Douglas, John Nagle, John Thompson, Elizabeth Davis, Mary Hill, and Nellie Hale. All were remanded until Friday.
