

CHANCES ARE THAT LONGBOAT WILL WIND UP IN A CIRCUS

Powers About Tired of His Indian Protege—Wants to Get a Couple of Races Off His Hands and Then Let Him Go.

Take a little tip. Pat Powers won't have Longboat long. He'll be working for a circus before summer time, or I am much mistaken.

Powers find him too hard to handle, and once he gets his he will sell Longboat's contract. 'Cola Bros.' circus are hot-foot after the Indian, and will likely get him.

There are the usual rumors around town about the postponement of last night's race between Shrub and Longboat.

"Shrub faked," says one. "A bit of sharp play to influence the betting, same as Longboat losing to Smallwood in Philadelphia before the first Dorando race," cries another.

"Shrub will never meet the Indian," is the opinion of a third, and "Tim O'Hourke agrees with him."

"Shrub has all gone to pieces, and will never last the route," says still another.

In my own humble opinion, if there are any more postponements they will be on the Indian's side, not the Englishman's, though, at that, Shrub is pretty well keyed up now, and does not want any more hard drilling.

"I'm satisfied he has the strength for the route; now to get the speed out of him," says one before I left New York town. "If he stays right for two weeks you can throw that Newport race out of your door. I will keep a doctor looking after him every day, so that if anything can't get a start on us, I'd sooner handle ten box-fighters than this fellow. He has it on them all for sure."

Harry Pollok has agreed to match the Indian against the winner of the Dorando-Haves sprint race in Chicago, and there is talk of a Dorando-Longboat race here.

Lou E. Marsh.

give him something to burn up in the Sprint. Longboat gains speed in the next two weeks and his physical condition does not deteriorate, on the contrary, it improves.

Now that Powers has satisfied the Indian's demands and has been contented once more, Jimmy De Forest says he will not be in the race at Newark Saturday night was over a tankard track, and did not hurt Longboat, but he hasn't been getting enough fast work. He needs more speed. He has the endurance, but he is not fit for this Shrub race.

Two weeks' more drilling, if nothing happens to him, will do him a world of good.

Shrub was right on his mettle when the sore toe developed, and is worrying now because he has gone up a notch or two in weight. That won't hurt him a bit. It will merely add to his bulk. He is a big, powerful fellow, and he has the endurance to last the route. He is a big, powerful fellow, and he has the endurance to last the route.

TORONTO ROWING CLUB'S 5TH WIN

Intermediate O.H.A. Team Still Undefeated in a Championship Game.

PARKDALE'S BELATED RUSH Paddlers Came Strong at the End, But Could Not Tie the Score.—Excitement at Mutual.

Toronto Rowing Club's Intermediate O.H.A. team won their fifth consecutive championship game in the series last night at Mutual street rink when they defeated Parkdale Canoe Club by 6 to 5 after leading at half-time by 5 to 2. The West Enders made a most determined finish and had the Oarsmen hangings on the ropes at the end. The ice was soft and slow naturally, but under the circumstances the game was exceedingly well played.

Rowing Club players used their weight to good effect, and though not quite as nifty stickmen as the Paddlers, were steadier all through the piece and fairly earned their victory, despite Parkdale's somewhat belated rush, which gave some lookers-on the erroneous impression that Rowing Club was lucky to win. On the contrary, taking the play all the way through, Parkdale was fortunate to make the score so close.

After twenty minutes of play, Henderson, the Parkdale rover, received an accidental cut on the head, and was forced to retire, Williams going off with him. They were off to a balance of the game. Just before half-time McAllister broke a skate, and he had held retired until after the intermission. In the second half McAllister and Kent mixed it up and were benched. Whale was off several times, as were McAllister and Kent. McLean was also penalized by Referee Roy Thomas, who handled the game in his usual capable fashion.

Parkdale had their fair share of the puck, but in the first half, especially, persisted in shooting from outside the net. Cromar, was the only forward to get right in on the net, and he could not do it all himself. Little Ripath shot accurately and showed gameness in checking Bill Brown, but didn't get in close enough to score. In the second half the Paddlers, led by McAllister, waded into the enemy's camp, took their bumps, and as a result, scored two goals. The game came very nearly tying the score. Wedd played a brilliant game spasmodically, and was very busy at the end. Clemes, in goal, made some fine stops, but a couple of easy ones beat him. McAllister played a hard, useful game, and was very busy on the forward line in the second half.

The Rowing Club had the better balance of the night, and their positions, showed better staying power than their opponents, and checked them out. The defence was not so good, and both sides had good judgment in their rushes. Bricker, in goal, played his customary reliable game. Brown and McDougall worked hard on the forward line, the former especially. The former especially jumped over the boards in the second half, moving some surplus undisciplined, rejoining the fray like one refreshed. Brown in goal, made some fine stops, but a couple of easy ones beat him. McAllister played a hard, useful game, and was very busy on the forward line in the second half.

The game was intensely exciting, and there was some hard hitting on both sides. The summary of goals will give some indication of how the excitement was maintained. The line-up: Rowing Club—Goal, Clemes (5); McAllister, Point, Ripath, Wedd, Kent, Cromar, Rover, Henders, McDougall, Center, Brown, Bricker, Brown, R. Winger, Referee—Roy Thomas.

THE REAL THING IN PATENT LEATHERS

When you want patent leathers you want them right. Better none at all than a shabby pair!

Yet unless you are a leather expert you can't be sure, from its appearance, that a patent leather will stand.

The safe way is to select a pair with the word "SOVEREIGN" stamped on the sole. That word is your guarantee that the leather is genuine imported Russian colt, chrome tanned—the best patent leather made. It will not peel when snagged, and cracks less than any other patent leather made. Made in three grades: $4, $4.50, $5 per pair.

This traveler says that the kid has, untrained, shown a quarter in .56 seconds, a half in 2:11, two miles in 11:49, and tells a story about him running down a two-year-old heifer in the woods. The kid's quarter in .56 and his half in 2:11 are good, but there isn't much to that two miles in 11:49.

MERRY WIDOW AND REUBEN WON RACES

Montreal Driving Club's Second Day's Races at Delorimier Park a Success.

Montreal, Jan. 27.—At Delorimier Park Tuesday two races were run on the card—the 2:17 pace, a stakes, for which $1,000 was given, and the 2:12 class. The former was won in straight heats by the favorite, Merry Widow, a let-up owned by S. G. Camp, of Ontario, N. Y., and ably driven by Jack Romberg. Merry Widow sold for even money against the balance of the field in the overnight auctions, and excepting the close finish she had with J. B. ROWLEY YOUNG LET OUT BY BERLIN CLUB. Berlin, Jan. 27.—The Berlin management yesterday released Rowley Young, the former Toronto player, who has been on the local defence all season. Young's work has been a disappointment to the management of "the Dutch." He was a star with Toronto last season, and when in the old International League he was considered the best defence man in the game. Toronto wanted him for this winter and offered him a big salary, but Berlin raised the ante and got him. His speed seems to have deserted him, and while his rushes, which were so prominent last season, were noticeable in his absence, he was also off color in his defensive play. The locals have also released Art Serviss, the left wing, for cause.

The West Enders made a most determined finish and had the Oarsmen hangings on the ropes at the end. The ice was soft and slow naturally, but under the circumstances the game was exceedingly well played.

Rowing Club players used their weight to good effect, and though not quite as nifty stickmen as the Paddlers, were steadier all through the piece and fairly earned their victory, despite Parkdale's somewhat belated rush, which gave some lookers-on the erroneous impression that Rowing Club was lucky to win. On the contrary, taking the play all the way through, Parkdale was fortunate to make the score so close.

After twenty minutes of play, Henderson, the Parkdale rover, received an accidental cut on the head, and was forced to retire, Williams going off with him. They were off to a balance of the game. Just before half-time McAllister broke a skate, and he had held retired until after the intermission. In the second half McAllister and Kent mixed it up and were benched. Whale was off several times, as were McAllister and Kent. McLean was also penalized by Referee Roy Thomas, who handled the game in his usual capable fashion.

Parkdale had their fair share of the puck, but in the first half, especially, persisted in shooting from outside the net. Cromar, was the only forward to get right in on the net, and he could not do it all himself. Little Ripath shot accurately and showed gameness in checking Bill Brown, but didn't get in close enough to score. In the second half the Paddlers, led by McAllister, waded into the enemy's camp, took their bumps, and as a result, scored two goals. The game came very nearly tying the score. Wedd played a brilliant game spasmodically, and was very busy at the end. Clemes, in goal, made some fine stops, but a couple of easy ones beat him. McAllister played a hard, useful game, and was very busy on the forward line in the second half.
