

REDISTRIBUTION OF MINOR LEAGUES—TORONTO IN, QUEBEC OUT OF THE N.H.A.

CONSOLIDATED CLUB-HOUSE FOR ALL CITY AQUATIC CLUBS

Proposal by Engineer E. L. Cousins of the Harbor Commission, So as to Satisfy the Demands of All Concerned—Separate Quarters for Each Club and One Central Auditorium for All.

A suggestion that will create something akin to a revolution in aquatic circles in Toronto is advanced by Mr. E. L. Cousins, engineer of the Harbor Commission, as a solution to the problem of providing new sites for yachting, rowing, canoeing, and motor boating clubs now established on the city side of the bay.

The National Yacht and Skiff Club at the foot of Bathurst street is already smothered by the harbor improvement, and the rest will have to move shortly when the harbor improvements have advanced to the foot of York street, where the remainder are located.

turn, he had gone into three places close behind Stargazer, while Westy Hogan, who had been in the lead, turned the turn for home was made. Leochares passed Stargazer, and then the real race began.

The opening race went to J. W. C. White Knight, who won by a head in a hard drive from Valais. Puts and Callis, a five-year-old maiden, won the second race.

BOMBING FASCINATES FORMER BALL PLAYER

Sporting Angle to Grenade-Throwing, Says Soldier in Trenches.

NOT LIKE A BASEBALL

Back and Body Behind Throw, With Follow-Through Like in Golf and Other Games.

There is a sporting angle even in the ghastly business of war, and the following excerpt from a letter from a United States soldier and former baseball player now in France will interest followers of the baseball.

"I've taken strongly to bombing, and the indications are that I will be permanently assigned to the bombing squad. Down in our practice trenches the other day I scored fourteen hits in sixteen tries, which happened to be better than anybody in my company did.

"We used dummy bombs and grenades, but the conditions, otherwise, were of the same character that we shall confront later on. We were distributed about our first line trench. Over the top, over a stretch of about sixty feet of ground, was No Man's Land.

"Certain spots were marked out in the 'German' front line trench as targets, and it was at these we aimed. From a sporting angle this business of grenade-throwing is quite a game. I enjoyed it tremendously, and it has been absorbingly interesting and fascinating to the other fellows.

"The follow-through principle which prevails in golf, baseball, tennis, football, squash, billiards and racquets also obtains in bombing. It's a case of following through on a golfer's drive, the sweep of a free-swinging batter, the arc described by a tennis player serving, a half-swing kick in a football, a full swing, the swing of the squash and racket player and the follow-through of the expert billiard player—each and every one of them.

"We have distance, accuracy and time to consider, and the importance of each of these requisites is considered. Perfect aim in all three alone will spell success.

"I take a bomb, place it in my right hand and extend both my right and left hands. Both feet are together when I start the movement, and my left hand is used as an index. I point it at the spot I hope to be the wall over a trench, or, if extended upward and backward I also move my right foot back a few feet from the trench.

"I bring my right arm upward, and lift it naturally upward, and then, when the right arm still extended, it is upright in line with my body. I release my grip on the bomb, and the bomb is considered distance and accuracy, and I provide for explosion at contact—timing. I throw the bomb so that it will describe an arc in its flight to consume time.

TORONTO WHIPPET CLUB Geo. White President and A. Lowenstein Secretary-Treasurer. The Committee.

"Not Throwing Like Baseball. 'The bomb is never thrown in a straight line like a baseball. It is not released straight from the shoulder, but the back and body are leaning forward, also the shoulder. The elbow is bent, as in baseball, and the reason for this is that a fellow's arm would go dead on him if he threw a bomb straight.
